Not illustrated. 1856 Excerpt: .might be distinguished by being painted with different colours, and the termination of each week by a black perpendicular line. This apparatus might be rendered of use for familiarizing the young to the regular succession of months and seasons; and for this purpose they might be requested, at least every week, to point out on the circle the particular month, week, or day, corresponding to the time when such exercises are given. But there are many branches besides these enumerated--such as Natural History, Physical Science, Geography, c.--which require visible illustrations in teaching them. A writer in the Educational Magazine suggests, that such subjects as these may be illustrated in one or other of the following ways: --1. By the actual presence of the things to be made known, with all their natural circumstances. 2. By the presence of the same in an imperfect state, or in...
